- ". . . I have read two Camilluses on the constitutionality of the treaty. So much answer to so little weight of objection is odd. He holds up the Egis against a wooden sword. Jove's eagle holds his bolts in his talons, and hurls them not at the Titans, but at sparrows and mice. I despise those objections in which blockheads only are sincere. Our Governor has not yet delivered his most democratic speech, altho it is the second week of the Court's sitting. To-morrow Wisdom opens her mouth. It is said he has twice or thrice new model'd his preachment as he was lead by hopes and fears of the temper of the members. Finding no anti-treaty stuff would be well recev'd it is to be suppressed.
